

What to Know About the Appraisal Process

What to expect—and how to prepare—for the appraisal

Once you are under contract, the buyer's lender will send out an appraiser to make sure the purchase price is in line with the property's value.

Appraisals help guide mortgage terms.

The appraised value of a home is an important factor in the loan underwriting process. Although lenders may use the sale price to determine the amount of the mortgage they will offer, they generally only do so when the property is sold for less than the appraisal amount. Also, the loan-to-value ratio is based on the appraised value and helps lenders figure out how much money may be borrowed to purchase the property and under what terms. If the LTV is high, the lender is more likely to require the borrower to purchase private mortgage insurance.

Appraised value is not a concrete number.

Appraisals provide a professional opinion of value, but they aren't an exact science. Appraisals may differ quite a bit depending on when they're done and who's doing them. Changes in market conditions also can dramatically alter appraised value.

Appraised value doesn't represent the whole picture of home prices.

There are special considerations that appraised value doesn't take into account, such as the need to sell rapidly.

Appraisers use data from the recent past.

Appraisals are often considered somewhat backward looking, because they use sold data from comparable properties (often nicknamed "comps") to help come up with a reasonable price.

There are uses for appraised value outside of the purchase process.

For selling purposes, appraisals are usually used to determine market value or factor into the pricing equation. But other appraisals are used to determine insurance value, replacement value, and assessed value for property tax purposes.

YOUR JOURNEY HOME STARTS HERE
newmexico.properties (575) 538-1487

Laurel Brandi
Associate Broker, REALTOR®, ABR®, e-PRO®, GREEN®
(575) 640-6511

laurel@VistaTeamNM.com
www.VistaTeamNM.com

www.newmexico.properties

Disclaimer: The information provided herein is for informational purposes only and is not intended as a solicitation if your property is currently listed with another real estate agent or broker, or if you are currently under an active real estate agreement with another agent or broker. All data and information presented, including but not limited to pricing, descriptions, and availability, are deemed reliable but not guaranteed, and are subject to change without notice. The Vista Team of New Mexico Properties makes no representations or warranties, express or implied, as to the accuracy, completeness, or suitability of the information provided. Prospective buyers and sellers should verify all information independently. The Vista Team of New Mexico Properties, its agents, and affiliates are not responsible for any typographical errors, misinformation, or misprints. Equal Housing Opportunity.

